A photograph of a church service. In the foreground, the backs of several people are visible as they sit in wooden pews. The middle ground shows a large group of people standing on a raised platform, some with their arms raised in praise. On the left side of the platform, a band is performing, including a pianist, a drummer, and other musicians. The background features a large, ornate stained-glass window. The overall atmosphere is one of a vibrant and active church gathering.
